The President's Corner

I am saddened to report that Dr. Radford Stearns, a Director of the ANA, passed away August 31 after a long illness fighting Leukemia. As you recall, Dr. Stearns was our guest speaker at our April meeting, and he gave a fine program on "History of the Western World in 28 Coins". As a longtime numismatic enthusiast and supporter, his many collecting friends will miss Dr. Stearns.

We had a fine program last month presented by Harold Fears on "1813 Jersey Tokens". This month Mike Ford on "Seated Dollars", who has specialized on collecting these beautiful coins, will bring our program. Be sure to attend.

Don't forget to bring something from your collection for our "Show and Tell" portion of our meeting.

See you on September 22.

Sincerely,

Bob Jaques

President

Collecting Hawaiian Currency

By Bob Jaques

Several months ago I wrote an article about collecting the coins of Hawaii struck in 1883 at the San Francisco mint, but not about their currency. That is because they did not have their own paper money at that time.

It was not until shortly after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor in Hawaii that the Islands had any currency with the overprint "HAWAII" on them. These bills, commonly referred to as WW II Emergency Notes, were issued in July, 1942, and were printed in four denominations: one, five, ten, and twenty dollars. These were the only notes allowed into the country unless personally approved by the Governor of Hawaii for a special reason.

The one dollar note was a silver certificate, but was printed with a brown seal and serial numbers instead of the customary blue seal and blue serial numbers common for silver certificates. The five, ten, and twenty dollar notes were Federal Reserve notes, and they also had brown seals and serial numbers. On the obverse of each of the four denominations was the word "HAWAII" in large bold letters, and on the reverse was the word "HAWAII" in large block letters.

Why were these bills printed? Simply as a precaution against inflation, counterfeiting, and economic disaster in case the Japanese were to advance and occupy the Islands. By having the words "HAWAII" on the currency then the residents would know which bills were genuine to use. Also, in case large quantities were captured, then the U.S. Government could easily declare them useless.

By late October 1944, the emergency monetary conditions were officially declared ended, and normal currency returned for everyday transactions. These "HAWAII" bills continued to circulate freely long after the war as they were still legal currency.

Today examples can be fairly easy to obtain in circulated condition for a nominal amount. However, uncirculated examples command a higher price due to their scarcity.

If you want to take an interesting numismatic path then try assembling a set of these four WW II Emergency Notes with the "HAWAII" overprint on them.

Why not bring a friend to the next meeting?

Inclement Weather Notice

If the Huntsville City Schools are closed due to inclement weather, then the Huntsville Senior Center is closed. There will be no club meeting if the Huntsville Senior Center is closed. Local TV and radio stations will give notice of any Huntsville school closure. ■

Jersey 1/52nd of a Shilling

By Harold Fears

The first coin listed in The Standard Catalog of World Coins for Jersey is the 1841 1/52nd of a shilling or the Jersey farthing. This coin has a mintage of 116,000. The only other 1/52nd of a shilling coin is the very rare proof only issue of 1861.

The obverse of the 1841 1/52nd of a shilling

The reverse of the 1841 1/52nd of a shilling

The 1861 coin was not minted for circulation, but only for collectors. Because of die clashing, striations are visible on the obverse. The reverse also has markings of the obverse die.

The 1841 coin is hard to locate in decent grades, while the 1861 proof is next to impossible to find anywhere.

The obverse of the proof only 1861 1/52nd of a shilling

The reverse of the proof only 1861 1/52nd of a shilling

Next month, we will take a look at the copper  $1/26^{nd}$  of a shilling series.
